General John A. Wickham, USA
Army Chief of Staff
Room 3E668, The Pentagon
Washington, DC 20310

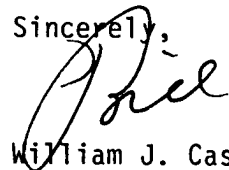

Dear General Wickham:

I have just spent a memorable day at Fort Leavenworth as an Omar N. Bradley lecturer, speaking to selected members of the faculty and student body. While I was there, General Vuono was kind enough to arrange an afternoon of briefings on current programs at the College.

I want to let you know how impressed I was, both with the alertness and vigor of the officers I met and with the expanded educational opportunities now being offered. Particularly, the selective two year program for promising students seems to be well conceived and administered. I congratulate the Army for taking such a farsighted view of officer development.

I wish you and the Army a warm holiday season and good fortune in the coming year.

Sincerely,

William J. Casey
